NATURE'S GARDEN -- "It lies around us like a cloud. A world we do not see." In a woods outside Upland, nature displays her infinite grace.

UPLAND'S FUTURE

Headed For Building Boom

It would take an almost complete collapse of the building industry to prevent Upland building from breaking the all-time record in 1972.

The year 1962 still holds the record but that figure of $20,573,403 could be almost doubled if building in the last six months of 1972 equals the first six months.

June was a mediocre month. Building permits were issued for only $34,852 worth of residential and commercial building during the month but the total of this year is a whopping $18,006,670. This figure is only $2,566,733 shy of the total for the entire year of 1962.

Three months, January, February and May, accounted for $17,281,088 of the building so far this year. May is the blockbuster so far this year, $9,086,126. The totals for January and February were $4,525,383 and $3,670,179, respectively.

The months of March, April and June were in direct contrast to the three big months. March was only $16,992 and the April total was $223,138.

Multiple family dwellings have accounted for $13,538,992 of the total for the first six months of 1972 while single family dwellings totaled $1,929,520 during the period.

S.B. Supervisors Ok Antidrug Abuse Plan

The San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors has approved the 1972 County Drug Abuse Control Plan and will soon submit it to the State Department of Mental Hygiene for final approval.

Prepared by the County Mental Health Unit, the plan outlines the extent of the drug abuse problem in the county and recommends the development of a series of programs to deal with the situation.

The plan reports that in 1971 there were a total of 65 drug deaths and 4,533 drug arrests in San Bernardino County.

To offset this serious problem, the Drug Abuse Control Plan recommends increased drug education in the schools, increased availability of drug information

Upland And Its Employees End War

Upland's city labor troubles may be over. The Upland Police Officers' Association (UPOA) and the city negotiators finally reached agreement on wages, hours and fringe benefits. Additionally, the president of the Upland City Employees Association (UCEA) and city negotiators met recently to resume talks.

Problems resulted when the City Council passed a resolution setting 1972-73 pay increases for police at 3.1 percent. The resolution gave all employees, except police and supervisors, a 5.5 percent pay hike.

The police rejected this resolution, saying it cut an incentive plan in half. The police and the city negotiation team, headed by City Manager Elwin Alder, supposedly agreed on a plan that would give police employees up to 10 percent extra for training and education.

The UCEA objected to this on grounds that negotiations had not been completed.

Three weeks ago, the UCEA board of directors released a statement charging Alder and his staff with gross misconduct and bad faith. It was hinted that more disagreement could produce a strike or loss of city services. Both the UPOA and the UCEA appealed the resolution to the City Council two weeks ago.

City Attorney Donald Maroney said that the city had received a letter from the UCEA and the council has passed the resolution in order to insure retroactive pay, as requested by the UCEA.

A UCEA spokesman said that the UCEA did not want salaries "set in the resolution."

Councilman Harold Ballin said he understood that the council chose "not to give" the UCEA what they wanted.

Both the UCEA and the UPOA asked the council to void the resolution, but the council refused and decided to keep Alder as its representative in salary negotiations.

Alder has confirmed that tentative agreement has been reached with the police. However, he refused to reveal the terms until the proposal is placed before the council.

UPOA President Bob Beringer refused to give the terms of the settlement, but indicated there are several loose ends to clear up before the agreement goes to council.

Upland Personnel Director Manuel Rede also refused to give the settlement terms, saying, "We have reached an agreement with the police, but I can't release any terms until the memorandum of understanding is submitted to the City Council for approval."

When asked if the police incentive plan has been restored to its original form, Rede replied, "The incentive plan was the only item that had not been agreed upon earlier. I cannot now disclose any of the details.

Recall Effort Fails Here

An attempt to recall three members of the Chaffey Union High School District Board of Trustees has failed, a county official announced today.

Initiators of the move to recall trustees James F. Garlepp Jr., G. A. Chalfant and Maurice Goodman failed to meet the July 31 deadline for filing petitions with sufficient signatures to qualify for a recall election.

Initiators of the recall action were identified in the San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters office as Ms. Iris Haugen, 1679 N. Third Ave., and Ms. Billie J. Bealer, 1367 Oxford Way, both of Upland.

The recall attempt was an outgrowth of racial outbreaks on three district campuses late last year. The problems occurred at Chaffey, Upland and Alta Loma High Schools.

The petition was filed with the county registrar's office Jan. 31. According to Ms. Marilyn Watson, coordinator of school elections for the registrar's office, the circulators had six months in which to gather signatures of 20 percent of the school district's registered voters.

Recent figures show the county had more than 56,000 voters on registration rolls.

YE OL' HISTORY

Riding On Upland's Mule Car

Euclid Avenue today is a wide, modern thoroughfare containing too many cars, too much noise and too many jaywalking pedestrians. The shade trees which still protect the avenue recall another age.

Euclid Avenue was once an almost quiet street; its main attraction was the famous Euclid Avenue mule car.

The man who designed the mule car was J.H. Tays, a mining man from Mexico. He based his idea on that of a mule car rig which was used in South African mines.

The mule car was assembled in 1887. The main road in the Upland-Cucamonga area needed some means of public transportation, and there was no electricity available. (Tays, almost immediately, was recognized as a genius).

The mule car idea never would have worked if the land had not sloped down from an area then known as the "Heights," for eight miles to Ontario. The car was nicknamed the "gravity" car, possibly for more reasons than one.

Mules pulled the car up to 24th Street, then the sturdy little creatures climbed onto a heavy platform in back of the car. Because the mules were heavy, they made the car go downhill faster. (What a joy ride that must have been!) The mules enjoyed their free ride into town. Sometimes, when a driver was ready to start back up, a cranky mule would shove the other off the platform. Then the driver would have to take time out to drive his remaining "gravity" off the platform. (Many raw carrots were used.)

Few mule car mishaps were reported. Once, in 1894, a mule fell off the car platform while the car was on its downward trip. The furious mule, who had been asleep when he slipped and fell, charged after the speeding car, braying all the way. This amused bystanders and mule car riders, until the annoyed mule broke into a crowd of onlookers and bit two people . . . one on the ankle, the other on the hip.

Lack Of Water Reported Here

Upland City Manager Elwin Alder last week announced that the city was unable to fill its water storage tanks because of a pump breakdown. Alder further said the tanks could be refilled if people refrained from using water for irrigation or recreational purposes. Apparently, Alder's plea was unnecessary.

San Antonio Water Company and West End Consolidated Water Company Manager Charles Thomas said, "We had plenty of water. I wasn't even contacted in regard to the request to conserve water. We had three pumps that hadn't even been started."

The mule, named Amigo, was not chastised, but his name was changed to Sam.

In 1896, the company that owned the mule car line decided it would be better if the car were run by electricity. A power house was built in San Antonio Canyon, and a generator installed to produce electricity.

The proud little mules were put out to pasture, for one day. Then the new power house caught fire and burned down.

The mules got their jobs back--for a while at least.

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH—Jon Andrews, left of Upland, a senior at Seattle Pacific College, is one of eight undergraduate students who have been doing research this summer at the University of Idaho in the Undergraduate Research Participation program. Andrews works here with his advisor Dr. Richard J. Spangler, assistant professor of chemistry. He has assisted Spangler with research on synthesis of cularine alkaloids, compounds used in treating brain tumors.

Bank representatives will be briefed on the new Chaffey College banking program to be launched in the fall quarter in an orientation session here, Aug. 9.

The 10-11:30 a.m. meeting in Room 7 of the Forum Building here will also deal with registration procedures and services available at the college.

Relief Support Sought

The West End United Fund is joining with organizations throughout the nation in urging contributors to assist the American National Red Cross in a special Disaster Fund Drive to aid recent flood and hurricane victims in 12 eastern states.

The announcement was made recently by Morris Horsley, president, West End United Fund.

"The facts of the disaster are a nightmare," Horsley said. "In Rapid City alone, there were more than 200 persons killed and many are still missing. Over 1,200 homes were totally destroyed. More than 20,000 victims and relief workers received immediate aid from the Red Cross."

Red Cross officials have announced that 18,440,250 has been spent to date for food, shelter and other mass care services. The Red Cross has provided individual assistance to 61,046 families for clothing, household furnishings, home repairs, medical aid and temporary living quarters.

The budgeted Red Cross Disaster Fund, which local contributors already have helped with their United Fund gifts, was over spent before the South Dakota Flood.

A $15 million national goal has been set to help the American Red Cross to meet this deficit.

All help from the Red Cross is free -- an outright gift from "good neighbors" across America, according to Horsley. The West End Red Cross has been assigned a $15 million national goal, Horsley said, and the West End United Fund is supporting this special Disaster Fund Campaign.

The West End United Fund leader said "Everyone who remembers our 1969 floods must feel a great empathy for our neighbors in the stricken states. The American Red Cross granted $175,000 to this area in 1969, and we urge contributors to join us in helping others now."

Checks may be made payable to the "Disaster Relief" and sent to the West End United Fund, 309 N. Euclid Ave., Ontario, or the Red Cross Service Center, 209 East 1st St., Ontario.

Uplander Heads New "On-The-Job" Training Program

Under the direction of Raul Vargas of Upland, 25 students from East Los Angeles high schools are participating in a "first of its kind" program which combines academic experience and on-the-job training in offices at the University of Southern California.

The USC concept of a total immersion program is an expansion of the original summer work program of Youth Corps, the Department of Labor and the Los Angeles City School District.

Vargas believed that many of the public programs designed to provide summer employment for students were "meaningless, make-work" jobs which offered some income but no challenge and served in no way to encourage the students' aspirations for any kind of real advancement toward a particular personal or academic goal.

"At USC, we started with a group of bright students from East Los Angeles high schools. They had to show not only good academic averages but also evidence of participation in their school activities."

A school bus, provided by the Los Angeles City School District, picks up the students in their neighborhoods at 8:30 a.m. and has them on the USC campus in time for a 9 a.m. lecture or class. In these classes they hear about various career fields from USC faculty and staff.

They have heard about careers in medicine, engineering, law, pharmacy, dentistry, public administration, education, urban and regional planning, geology, foreign languages, business, library science and others. And wherever possible, they hear about careers -- not from the Smiths or Joneses -- but from the Tranquadas, the Zapantas, the Maldonados and Delgados. Hearing the challenge to enter the particular career field from a successful person with a familiar surname has real impact, Vargas feels.

"We realize even through our efforts, some of these students may never attend USC strictly for financial reasons," said Vargas, "but they're all bright enough to go to college and we want to give them an idea of what they can do if they decide to continue their education. And we want to make sure they get their message from someone they can relate to and identify with in their own goals."

When the lecture session is over the students go to work. Each of the 25 students is employed in an office in the University. Their office hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and they're employed in such offices as the School of Pharmacy, the Placement Office, Public Broadcasting, Business, Urban and Regional Planning, Data Processing, Dentistry, News Bureau, Engineering and others.

Vargas and his associates, Mary Ann Pacheco of Lynwood and Priscilla Jaquez of Los Angeles, have checked and double checked with students and employers and the response from both sides is enthusiasm for the program. Employers, in many cases, want to expand the program and train more students for their offices.

Students are gaining professional experience and job references not as well as developing valuable interpersonal relationships.

To insure the program isn't all work and no play, all-day field trips are planned throughout the summer. They're varied in location and emphasis, for instance: the San Diego Zoo, USC School of Medicine campus and the adjacent Los Angeles County - USC Medical Center and Padua Hills. Some trips are strictly for educational purposes, some are for culture and some are intended as a "communication with nature."

Vargas has been the most enthusiastic supporter of the program since its inception but when asked to judge the success of the program he defers to the students. "After all," he said,

"it's not my life that's being affected; it's theirs."

Midway through the program a questionnaire was prepared for students to complete. They were asked to comment on the program but not sign their names. Samples of their comments follow: "I would recommend continuing the program. I have an educational and interesting job."

"I have learned how to enter college and the necessary things to do to accomplish this."

"It is a far-out program."

"This is just my kind of thing."

"I like the program because it has helped me to find what I want and what career I want to go into."

"I feel this program is as exceptional as it is interesting. It's different and it offers valuable education as well as work experience."

"It's not a bummer. It's A-

OK!"

Local Student At Center

Terri Ann Kilpatrick of Upland has begun the summer session at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas, Texas.

Ms. Kilpatrick is pursuing a four-year professional nurse course at the University. The six-week session will be devoted to study of the introductory courses in nursing. Other nursing courses will be taken during the following four semesters.

Ms. Kilpatrick is a junior student in the Baylor University School of Nursing, Waco, Texas, U.S.A.

Register Cards Available

Students are advised to apply now for permit-to-register cards for the fall quarter at Chaffey College for an optimum range of class selection.

"The longer that students put off starting the admissions procedure the less their chances of getting enrolled in the classes of their choice," admissions dean David Hafiz said.

A permit-to-register card for each quarter here is required of all students whether they are currently attending or planning to attend. The permit-to-register card indicates time and date to register.

This card is issued to a new or former student, enrolling for 12 or more units, only after he has met these requirements:

--Filled out an application for admission. This must be done in person.

--Had transcripts of records sent to Chaffey College from last high school attended and from all colleges attended.

--Taken the college placement test. (The American College Test or the Scholastic Aptitude Test may be taken in lieu of the local placement test. Either ACT or SAT is recommended for the student who plans to continue at a four-year college.)

--Filed measles and polio immunization forms here. (This part of the admissions procedure is not stipulated for California high school graduates.)

A part-time student (one taking less than 12 units) need comply with only the first requirement, the application for admission, to obtain the permit-to-register card.

If a prospective full-time student (12 or more units) has not taken the placement test, he has three more opportunities to do so in time for the fall quarter. The tests are scheduled for Aug. 5, Aug. 16 and Sept. 2.

Registration itself will be on Sept. 5-6 for current students and 12-13 for new or former students.

For further information on admissions procedures, call 987-1737 or 822-7456.

County Budget Is Now Approved

Culminating a hectic series of budget hearings, the County Board of Supervisors has adopted a final budget of $181,574,000 for 1972-73.

While the tax rate is not set by the board until late August, supervisors received the assurance of County Administrative Officer Robert A. Covington that the new budget will require no increase in the 1971-72 tax rate of $3 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The budget is up approximately $6 million from last year's $175,327,164 figure. But projections indicate that expended assessed valuation plus added miscellaneous revenues will provide the additional income without a tax increase.

The 1972-73 budget provides for the addition of 374 new job positions. It further provides for a pay increase of 4.7 percent for county employees at a cost of $2,995,000.

A motion by Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell to adopt the budget carried by a 4-0 vote in the absence of Supervisor Donald C. Beckord, who is on vacation.

After the budget was approved, Board chairman Ruben S. Ayala expressed the hope that "our action this morning will encourage other agencies to keep taxes down."

This year's budget considerations were marked by an unusual move by the County Grand Jury, which adopted a resolution before the budget hearing calling on supervisors to make every effort to hold the tax line.

This prompted chairman Ayala to reiterate that county taxing agencies should be targets of the Grand Jury's watchfulness, not just the County Board of Supervisors.

The County Board of Supervisors has granted another 30-day extension for consideration of a zone change appeal that would permit establishment of an Alta Loma post office at 19th and Amethyst Streets.

The extension was requested by Maurice G. Covington, Ontario attorney representing Louis S. Bennett, owner of the proposed post office site.

Covington told the board that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers had made a study of the site with an eye to flood control problems.

"I haven't seen the (Corps of Engineers) report," Covington said, "but I understand it was received by Mr. Sidler's office."

He was referring to M. A. Sidler, county flood control engineer.

Covington asked the board to continue the matter for 30 days. If at the end of this period the matter has not been resolved,

Supervisors stressed that the new job positions approved by the board will be filled only after careful evaluation of each position convinces the board of the need to fill it.

COUNTY OKS POSTAL DELAY

he added, "then we would make a full presentation to this board."

The matter involves an appeal by Bennett from a negative ruling by the County Planning Commission on Bennett's application for a zone change from A-1-5 to C-1 on his property to permit establishment of the post office on the corner.

Sidler, when called on by the board, said his office had received a letter back from the Corps of Engineers "substantiating that there is a flood control hazard there (on the 19th and Amethyst property) and suggesting that certain improvements should be made."

Sidler added the belief that "if Mr. Bennett and his engineer will meet with us we can work out these problems."

In moving that the extension be granted, Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell, in whose district the property is located noted that "really, it has been at your request that we have postponed this matter."

Women And The Opal

Traditionally, the opal is considered an unlucky stone for everyone except those people born in October. To the October born, the stone is supposed to grant wealth, beauty and the power to become invisible. To anyone else, the opal will grant disaster. In the Middle Ages, opals were often given, cruelly, as presents to unwanted suitors. It was a stone symbolizing fickleness and infidelity.

Arthur Lindner, owner of the Double Eagle Coin Shop (formerly the Upland Coin Shop), says the hard luck stories attributed to opals are unfounded and untrue. "A lot of the stories were made up or elaborated on by the diamond industry," he said. "Opals are more unusual, better stones than diamonds. If most people knew this, they'd stop buying diamonds and start investing in opals."

Lindner has owned the shop on Second Avenue for four years. He's been importing opals from Australia for about two. "The opal market is getting tighter," Lindner said. "It's getting hard to find really good opals. The best on sale today are those that come from Australia." Lindner showed me a batch of opals he keeps in bottles on a shelf. "These stones are for the do-it-yourself craftsman," he explained. "Some people enjoy setting their own stones or doing other things with them."

I noticed that the bottles contained water.

"The opal is 20 percent water," Lindner said. "Contrary to popular belief, it's a stone that's not easily cracked or broken, unless it's allowed to dry out. All opals need an overnight bath from time to time. These stones are stored in water. Notice how bright they are."

One of the opals cast a warm red glow.

"It looks as if the stone is on fire," I said.

Lindner looked at the stone. "That's an Australian Fire Opal. These are beautiful stones. As I keep them in water, they never lose their sheen. You see, the water causes the light to diffuse, and that causes the color."

Lindner's bottled opals sell for a reasonable price-- from $2.50 to $25 a bottle.

"The fascinating thing about opals," Lindner continued, "is that they're all different, just as human beings are. No other stone is like that. You can get diamonds or emeralds that are pretty much alike. They can be cut to be almost exact copies of one another. This can't be done with an opal."

There has been some controversy over the categorizing of opals. Lindner said he considers the opal to be a precious stone.

I looked over Lindner's collection of set opals. My eye centered on one particular gem. "That one looks like an emerald," I said.

I think Lindner was momentarily insulted. "Which one?" he asked.

"That one." I pointed it out. "Though now it looks like a piece

"That one." I pointed it out. "Though now it looks like a piece of jade."

Lindner removed the stone from its case and put it under a light.

"It may look like many things," Lindner said, "but it's like no other stone. This is a black opal."

Upon closer inspection, the black opal did not look like any other stone. Its colors changed, danced. It danced. It definitely was itself.

"One thing I can say to women," Lindner said, "is that if you buy an opal, no one will have another just like it. It will be your stone alone."

I left the store thinking of a line from a poem I'd forgotten.

"Glory be to God for dappled things--"

And glory be for opals.

Lola Montez: Calif. History

the "spider dance." Here Lola, clad in a short dress -- "scandalous" for the period, would leap around the stage pretending to be pouncing at attacking spiders. The dance was popular in Spain. In early California, the miners and their wives found it laughable.

Lola and her husband travelled throughout the state. Lola appeared as Marquita in 'Carneval of Seville' in a playhouse not far from present downtown Pomona in 1854. The Spanish audience approved Lola's dancing and overlooked her short costumes. Pat Hull, however, glowered from the wings. It was time Lola became respectable.

Lola and her husband had a series of rows. Lola had a habit of throwing things -- pots, vases, knives. It wasn't long until Pat Hull had had enough. He sued for divorce.

Lola moved to Grass Valley in Nevada County. She referred to herself by her title, granted by the King of Bavaria. She was Lola, Countess von Landsfeldt, to the local gentry.

The countess was newsworthy, and she had some run-ins with the press. The most memorable took place when an editor named Shipley put an item in his paper insinuating that Lola Montez had left the stage to prey on the newly rich miners of California. Incensed, Lola tucked her buggy whip under one arm and marched to the saloon Shipley frequented. There she publicly confronted the man, vilifying him with four letter words in three languages, and hitting him with the buggy whip. Shipley left town a few days later.

In the mid-1850s, Lola's health started to fail her. It was whispered that she was suffering from a disease "no lady" every mentioned. Her ex-husband, Pat Hull, died suddenly of a paralysis. His death was blamed on Lola.

In 1855, Lola left Grass Valley and went to New York. There she earned money by giving a series of lectures on her unusual past. At the age of 41, she had a stroke which left her partially paralyzed. A year later, destitute, she died in New York City.

Home-Canned Foods Can Be Deadly

Each year a number of cases of Botulism, the most lethal form of food poisoning, occur. Sadly, this danger lurks in an old and honored American practice -- "putting up" our own fresh fruits and vegetables -- home canning, "like Grandma used to do."

Unless strict precautions are followed, home-canned food may be contaminated with the spores of Clostridium Botulinum (botulism is the Latin word for sausage, the food in which the toxin was first demonstrated). The danger does not come directly from eating the bacteria themselves. In fact, a great deal of fresh food contains the spores of the bacteria which, when eaten, pass harmlessly through the digestive tract. However, under special conditions Clostridium Botulinum produces a toxin, a substance which may be the most lethal human poison in existence.

Food canning, if improperly carried out, can provide perfect conditions for the production of this poison.

The problem of Botulism is prevented in commercial canning by use of equipment producing a combination of temperature and pressure capable of killing the spores so they cannot grow into bacteria to produce their toxin.

However, since the Botulinum bacteria can survive 20 hours of boiling at normal sea-level pressures, simple home canning methods may not succeed in getting rid of them and, during storage, there is plenty of time for the fatal toxin to be produced.

Home canning can be carried out safely if certain procedures are carefully followed. These are fully described in the pamphlets "Home Canning of Fruits" and "Home Canning of Vegetables" which are available through University of California Agricultural Extension Service, Berkeley, 94720. A pressure cooking device is recommended for obtaining the combination of temperature and pressure which can kill the Botulinum organism during the canning process.

If you have a supply of home-canned food, you can make sure of its safety by one simple precaution -- boil before using! Although the bacteria may not be destroyed by boiling, the highly dangerous toxin is made harmless by ordinary boiling -- 10 minutes at sea level, longer at higher altitudes.

Botulism kills through the paralyzing action of its toxin upon the nervous system. Control of the muscles is lost, beginning usually with those about the face and neck. Loss of the ability to swallow makes it impossible to eat, leads to choking which may introduce foreign materials into the lungs, and usually produces death in several days.

Most patients have a history of having eaten food which tasted spoiled. This may be followed in a few hours by nausea and vomiting from the irritants usually found in spoiled food. Later the symptoms of muscle weakness begin to appear. If medical aid is quickly obtained, and the correct diagnosis is rapidly made, it may be possible to save the patient. A serum may be injected which, while it cannot help the nerves already damaged, is sometimes able to neutralize a portion of the toxin and limit further paralysis.

The speed with which fatal symptoms appear depends largely on the amount of toxin-containing food that is eaten. The first victim to be discovered usually has eaten the most. Others who have eaten the same food, but less of it, can often be protected by antitoxin injections if they can be treated before serious symptoms appear.

Commercially canned food can be considered safe. If you are given some home-canned food you can make sure it is safe by boiling at least 10 full minutes before use.

But the best treatment for Botulism is prevention.

How To Buy Beef

Beef is a wholesome high protein food and one which nutritionists say should be in your menus frequently. For the past 66 years beef and other meats have been federally inspected. In 1967 Congress passed an amendment to the 1966 Federal Meat Inspection Act which insures that all meat sold within state boundaries will meet a uniform standard of wholesomeness whether it is inspected by Federal or State inspectors.

Take a good look at the beef you buy, suggest experts from the California Beef Council, and you also can become an expert at selecting beef which pleases you most. If your family prefers lean beef with little or no fat, then it's unwise to purchase beef cuts containing a large amount of fat. Likewise, if your family enjoys eating the fat along with the lean, this is another point to consider. Both lean and fat beef are wholesome and healthful.

Appearance of beef is important in determining tenderness, juiciness and flavor. The lean muscles of high quality beef roasts and steaks have a velvety look, are bright colored, firm and fine textured. Flecks of fat in the lean is desirable.

Many Californians prefer to buy boneless beef. A large number of food markets will offer the same cut of beef -- chuck steak, for example -- with or without bone. Boneless beef

Kaiser Steel Reports Strong Quarter Earnings

Fire Threat Continues

Dry weather and fire explosive mountain areas are the most immediate incendiary threat in Southern California to homes which catch fire at a national "one every two minutes" rate causing 5,500 deaths and costing nearly $7,000,000 during 1970.

Three hundred homes were lost and 14 people killed in Los Angeles County brush fires during September of 1970 following an extremely dry season similar to the 1972 weather conditions.

However, even when a forest fire is windswept toward a man's home, there are safety precautions available to reduce the hazard, advises Executive Vice President Joseph Kaplan, Greater Los Angeles Chapter, National Safety Council.

If a major brush fire threatens a man's home, the Los Angeles Fire Department recommends: remove all vehicles from the street or driveway; place combustible garden furniture, bamboo screens, awnings, etc., in the garage; close all doors and windows including the garage; wet down shingle roofs and shrubbery around dwellings; and keep your family together.

When surrounded by a fast moving fire, citizens are advised to stay inside their homes until the mass of heat has swept past.

Preventive maintenance which helps homes resist fires includes: planting succulent ground covers and keeping them well watered, keeping roofs and gutters free from leaves and combustible material placing screens on attic vents and openings beneath homes to block the entry of hot embers and store firewood and lumber away from buildings.

Before emergency fire service is needed, home owners should provide house numbers that are easily seen, widen all access roads to accommodate fire equipment and install fire hydrant access to swimming pools for reserve water.

Laws, adopted to prevent forest fires and loss of homes and watershed vegetation, prohibit the discarding of lighted cigarettes or flaming substances where they may cause fires; declare campfires, left unattended or allowed to spread unchecked, illegal; and require brush to be cleared 30 feet from all homes and an additional 70 feet in areas where native brush is a fire hazard.

Rigid building code regulations require fire resistant roofs on housing located in Fire Zone No. 4, which includes the brush and forest covered area between the southern slopes of the San Gabriel Mountains and the southerly limits of the Antelope Valley extending from Ventura to San Bernardino Counties. Fire Zone No. 4 also includes the Malibu area.

The fire control ordinances of the County, which apply to buildings and structures erected, constructed or moved into or within Fire Zone No. 4, requires the undersides of combustible eaves, balconies and unenclosed floors and roofs to be fire proofed with one hour fire resistive construction or constructed of tongue and groove wood sheathing not less than two and one-half inches thick or surfaced with 26 gauge galvanized iron or equal incombustible materials.

Complete specifications may be obtained from the district offices of the Los Angeles County Engineer.

The Kaiser Steel Corporation has reported second quarter earnings of $1,655,000 on sales of $129,562,000. This amounts to $20 per common share after provision for payment of preferred dividends.

During the same quarter a year ago, the corporation earned $154,000 on sales of $125,022,000, which resulted in a loss of $0.03 per common share after provision for payment of preferred dividends.

Components of the second quarter results were: Net earnings on domestic operations $2,642,000 75% share of Kaiser Resources Ltd. loss (1,820,000) Equity in earnings (loss) of unconsolidated companies: Hamersley Holdings Limited 1,368,000 United International Shipping Corp. 525,000 Other 10,000 $1,655,000

For the first half of 1972, the corporation lost $9,666,000, or $1.50 per common share, on sales of $201,373,000, as compared to a first-half 1971 loss of $297,000, or $1.15 per common share, on sales of $264,019,000.

"Our domestic steel operations have made a good recovery from the effects of the six-week strike at the Fontana mill in the first quarter, which was responsible for the first-half loss in domestic operations," said Jack J. Carlson, president and chief executive officer. "Since the mid-March labor settlement, we have had an orderly resumption of domestic production and have experienced an improved sales level and an increasing rate of shipments during the second quarter."

Carlson pointed to progress under the company's new multi-year contract to provide 300,000 tons of hot rolled steel coils annually to General Motors. A unit train shipment has left for the East from Kal-ocean-going coal carriers on May 5. On June 30, the stockpile of 600,000 long tons of coking coal at Kaiser Resources' port facilities included approximately 380,000 long tons which otherwise would have been shipped to Japan if the seamen's strike had not occurred.

The Japanese seamen's strike also had an adverse effect on the profit contribution of Hamersley Holdings Limited.

Board Of Supervisors Adopt New Budget Here

After weeks of study and trimming, the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors has adopted a budget for fiscal 1972-73 that will not require an increase from the current property tax rate of $3 per $100 of assessed value.

Totaling $181,574,000, the budget represents an increase of only three percent, the smallest increase in five years.

Following the Supervisors' directive, the Administrative Office proposed a series of amendments to both revenue and expenditures which, when combined with additional reductions made by the Board during recent budget hearings, have made it possible to prevent a property tax increase for 1972-73.

At the current tax rate of $3 per $100 of assessed value the owner of a $20,000 home assessed at $5,000 will pay approximately $150 in County property taxes.

No comparative figures are available for 1972-73 but a study by the California Taxpayers' Association has found that San Bernardino County's 1971-72 per capita property tax requirement was the eighth lowest in the state.

Name Change

To better identify with the communities it serves, the Arthritis Foundation's Riverside/San Bernardino Counties office changed its name to the Inland Empire Branch. The address remains the same: 3646 Ninth Street, Riverside.

According to Robert O. Hunter, chairman of the local committee renamed Inland Empire, the new name is more descriptive of the area served and less cumbersome.

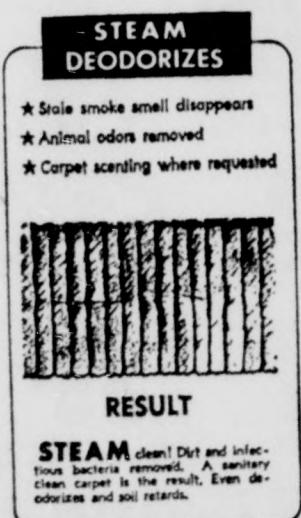

Hunter also announced Richard S. Gordon, M.D., was appointed vice chairman. Dr. Gordon, in private practice in Riverside, heads the arthritis clinic at the Riverside General Hospital and is affiliated with Loma Linda University Medical School.

The Inland Empire volunteer committee has increased its service activities to further support research, patient treatment and educational programs in the area. Currently, grants totalling $17,769 have been awarded locally by the Arthritis Foundation. These have included funds allocated to the Riverside Visiting Nurse Association for physical therapy to arthritis patients, and to arthritis clinics at the Riverside and San Bernardino General Hospitals, and to the San Bernardino Home Health Agency to defray costs of home nursing or special self help equipment for needy arthritics. In addition, a grant was given to Loma Linda University Medical School for the training of a doctor in rheumatology.

The branch will conduct a membership campaign in both counties within the next few months. Over 100,000 arthritis sufferers, men, women and children of all ages, live in the two-county area and are the beneficiaries of The Arthritis Foundation's medical and service programs.

For free booklets about arthritis, and clinic or doctors' referral information, write to the Inland Empire Branch of The Arthritis Foundation, 3646 Ninth St., Riverside; or call 682-8458.

Lewis Says Backlash Is Possible

"The Legislature is flirting with a voter backlash this November if we adjourn or recess before clearing the file," San Bernardino County Assemblyman Jerry Lewis has said.

In a letter sent to Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti and Senate President Pro Tempore James Mills, Assemblyman Lewis encouraged the legislative leadership to extend the 1972 Session beyond Friday's proposed recess.

"It would be totally irresponsible for the legislature to close shop when there are more than 250 measures awaiting final legislative action. Our entire system of government has suffered a barrage of criticism based upon our inaction. When we could clean the slate in less than 2 weeks if we get down to business, it is idiotic to open the door to criticism even further," Lewis said.

"School finance and tax reform are still unresolved. We came within one vote of tax reform agreement in the Senate. Is that the time to give up and go home?" Lewis asked. "Two more weeks is not too much to ask. Some of the leadership say 'we've been here too long -- it's an election year -- let's go campaign and come back in November," Lewis stated. "I say election year be damned. Let's get the work done the people sent us here to do. Then maybe we'll have something to campaign about."

Lewis further commented, "the suggestion that the file work can be completed in November should very carefully be reviewed before we set a precedent involving ourselves in Lame Duck Legislative action.

"In November, we will be operating with at least 13 members who were not re-elected to the Legislature. Many of them will be in Washington or preparing for other kinds of life pursuits.

"I suggest that every elected public official offer the people an alternative to the indecisiveness that has existed in Sacramento in recent years," Lewis concluded.

Blind Need Workshops

For most people, a car ride is commonplace and easy to get.

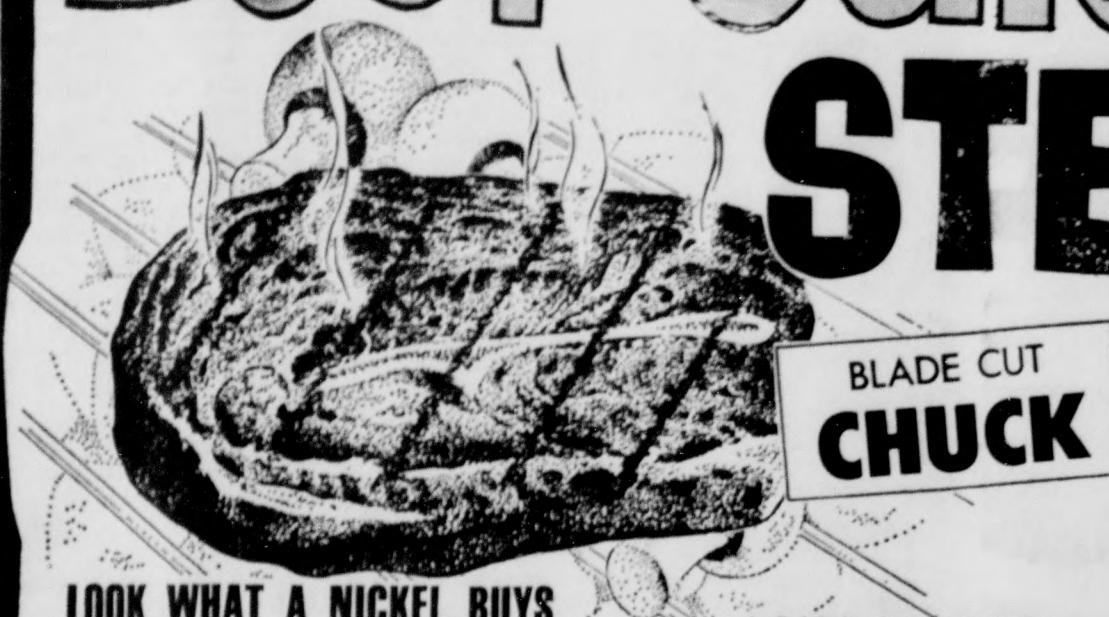

But for the blind, lack of transportation can mean not getting out of the house. A car ride, even once a week, can be difficult to obtain.

Every Thursday a group of blind people meet at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, Pomona, for a workshop, making artifacts and goods from leather and other materials. A banner is held and the proceeds go to help young blind students in college.

But many have no way of getting to the workshop. A group of volunteers drive many of the people to the Church, but often vacations or disruptions leave participants without a ride. Many have no ride to start with.

Those desiring more information about volunteering rides or about the ride to the Braille Institute may contact Opal Owens at 984-9248.

Grants Given To Health Units

As part of a nationwide effort to reduce the number of fatalities on the highway, the federal government has issued a number of grants to improve the present methods of emergency health care delivery throughout the United States.

John Cogglin, M.D., coordinator, Regional Medical Programs at Loma Linda announced the approval of a $50,000 grant for upgrading emergency medical care in San Bernardino, Riverside, Inyo and Mono counties. Dr. Cogglin anticipates additional funding will be forthcoming to San Bernardino County from Governor Reagan's Office of Traffic Safety under the authority of the National Highway Safety Act to help provide a comprehensive system. Additionally, Riverside County will be receiving funds as part of a federal contact with San Diego County. This will result in closer cooperation with San Diego and Imperial counties, but the main effort will be a joint venture with San Bernardino County. Both the metropolitan and rural areas will benefit from the improved system procedures through a shortening of response time for help to arrive.

"Communications and dispatching are the major weak links in the health care delivery system," stated Phillip Krasney, Director for the Emergency Medical Care project. Discussions are being held between the Boards of Supervisors of both counties to determine the most efficient means of implementation of the grant. Present planning envisions an emergency medical communications network with the hub being a 24-hour joint central ambulance dispatching center for the two counties. While enroute, all ambulances will be able to communicate jointly with the dispatch center and the hospital so that life saving instructions can be directly given to the ambulance attendant by a doctor. A single emergency medical telephone number will be installed in both counties which will connect to the dispatching center. Emergency radio telephones will be installed along the East/West freeways of the counties linked to the around-the-clock ambulance control center. There will also be innovative programs to provide ambulance personnel with emergency vehicle driver training and mobile medical training.

Drasney added that implementation of the project is the first major step in improving these vitally needed services. Problems will be overcome by the whole-hearted support of the county governments who are interested in improving the quality of the existing emergency service system.

Old House Vandalized

Mystery has once again struck at the 111-year-old John Rains House in Cucamonga. But vandals rather than ghosts are the suspected culprits.

A bronze plaque placed on the historic home by the Native Daughters of the Golden West, Ontario Parlor No. 251, has been removed. All that is left of the plaque which was first installed in November, 1933 is an empty space on one of the burnt brick walls.

The home now referred to as Casa de Rancho Cucamonga, was originally constructed in 1861. It is presently being restored through the efforts of the Casa de Rancho Cucamonga Historical Society, a chapter of the San Bernardino County Museum Association.

Quick Tips On How To Better Maintain Your Home

Question: "We plan to spend half of the year in our home in the South. The property is rather isolated and we have some break-ins. How can the larger picture windows be protected while we are away? Could they be replaced with an unbreakable material? Would plywood coverings inside do the job?"

Answer: Prisons are supposed to thwart escape, but some inmates still sneak or break out.

Trying to make a mere house burglarproof by covering or replacing windows may be much cry and little wool. About the best you can do is to make it harder for unauthorized entry.

Deterrents include unbreakable glass, bars at windows, plywood fastened inside them, security locks, alarm system, fencing, and good lighting.

Have you considered a live-in caretaker? Such a step might accommodate both you and the tenant, supplying each other's needs. Even if you paid him, wouldn't that be better than exposure to loss or damage from trespassers?

Question: "As temperatures change, the contraction and expansion of my new wall furnace continually makes a banging sound. The furnace man says it's always so. Have you an idea to help me have more quiet?"

Answer: One furnace man replied to the query for quiet: "Put plugs in your ears." Another said: "If it's a real banging noise, replace it with a more perfect furnace from the factory."

Is the noise a mere tick-tick as the flame goes on or off?

Ticking is par for a wall-furnace course. Some noise from expanding and contracting furnace metal has to be put up with just as water is wet, granite hard, and the sun warm.

One of the advantages of some types of electric heat is their noiselessness.

Question: "My newly purchased, eight-year-old, Southern California mountain cabin has a leaky asphalt shingle roof. Someone says a metal roof is the only thing in the mountains. Metal would detract from the beauty of the cabin, so I hesitate between it and another layer of asphalt shingles on the present roofing."

Answer: What kind of metal roof? There are factory-colored aluminum shingles or sheets which might not detract from the beauty.

At a nearby roofing company, investigate metal colors and styles as well as other fire-resistant roofing materials. Especially check prices and longevity.

True, the only thing in those mountains is a fire-resistant roof. So in a new roof equation, admit a practical fire-safety factor along with the aesthetic aspect.

Are you sure it's the roof that leaks?

Sometimes leaks are at metal roof jacks or flashings. Before reroofing an eight-year-old building, pinpoint the leaks since only caulking may be called for.

Question: "Some of our five-year old church pews are developing cracks and the tile on our Sunday School ceiling is becoming uneven and somewhat out of line. Is this caused by insufficient moisture in our church? Should we install humidifiers? Are humidifiers attached to the furnace preferable to portable ones?"

Answer: To ferret out the cause of cracks in pews 2,000 miles away is like clawing at air. Only an on-the-spot cat could nab cause and cure.

Garden Under Glass New Decorating Idea

Today one of the most fashionable accessories you can use in decorating your home is houseplants. Foliages of certain plants provide exciting colors and unusual sculpturing effects which compliment indoor interiors. They have a softening touch expressing safety, charm, drama and even sentimentality.

One of the simplest to care for, and most striking arrangements is the terrarium. These miniature gardens under glass fascinate by their appearing complexity and are an interesting conversation piece to have in any home.

To start a terrarium you need a basic glass container. There are many to choose from, varying in shape from the bulbous brandy snifter on a short stem, bubble bowls and candy store jars, to the circular or oval vase--or empty wine bottle. Or how about that un-used fish bowl or tank gathering dust on the shelf? The size of the container depends on the amount of greenery, soil and accent pieces you wish to place in it. Whatever size and shape you choose you can make it sparkle with tissue paper. Glass cleaner residues can damage plant leaves.

Once the container is chosen and properly cleaned, you are ready for planting. Sprinkle a layer of finely-flaked horticultural charcoal, or sponge rock, on the bottom of the container, to a minimum of three-quarters of an inch deep.

Now that a drainage layer has been formed, fill the container with packaged soil mix to the designated level. Nurseries have sterilized ready-to-use packaged soil mixes, which are recommended for such planting projects. If you prefer to mix your own soil instead of using the packaged mix, combine two parts loam, two parts sand or perlite and one part peat moss or leaf mold.

South All-Stars Nix North Stars In Shrine Game, 42-0

The message on the blackboard in the South All-Star's locker room was quite clear.

"Quitters never win and winners never quit."

The South All-Stars followed that simple philosophy to victory in the 21st Shrine Football Game at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

They seemingly never quit scoring—compiling the greatest number of points and the widest margin of victory in the Shrine classic's during their 42-0 annihilation of the North.

A rifle-armed quarterback named Vince Ferragamo stole the show completing 21 of 32 passes for 364 yards and four touchdowns to shatter all of the annual charity classic's previous passing records.

Meanwhile, a more familiar name in area football circles—John Sciarra—starred at an unfamiliar position—flanker, catching eight passes for 125 yards and three touchdowns.

Sciarra's performance at this position was so commendable that there were whispers that UCLA might switch its prize recruit from Quarterback, where he accounted for 33 touchdowns at Bishop Amat High, last season, to receiver.

However, Sciarra reassured the concerned parties that he will be assuming the controls of the Bruins' Wishbone-T formation as its quarterback in the future.

"I'll be playing quarterback at UCLA," said Sciarra after the game. "I've just had a talk with coach (Pepper) Rodgers and he says he thinks a can run the Wishbone-T."

"Actually, the pass is a secondary thing for me, anyway," said the CIF-AAAA Player of the Year. "The thing I like to do best is run and that's why I'd like to play quarterback in the Wishbone."

Another South performer who made a big impression on the North was defensive end Geb Church.

Church was highly instrumental in the virtual manhandling of the North's highly-touted offense, which was credited with a mere first down and was never permitted to move past its 42-yard line.

From his defensive end position, Church unofficially made 11 tackles, sacked North quarterback Kevin Sneed three times, and batted down one pass.

Church performed so well, in fact, that South co-coach Bob Hitchcock almost ran out of adjectives describing his play.

"Church is a super person," said Hitchcock. "He covers more ground on his squad than anybody. We put him outside at end just to get him up on the ball more."

The Stanford recruit later explained why he's plays defense with such a vicious flair:

"I just like to get a good stick."

Though aided primarily by Ferragamo, Sciarra, and Church, the North had its problems in other departments, too.

For instance, it was discovered during the first of its practice three weeks ago that hot-shot quarterback Pat Kohlman couldn't throw the ball 15 yards without drawing rain clouds.

So, Kohlman was shifted to defensive end on the second day of camp.

The North also had personnel problems in some other areas, especially on defensive.

In fact, the only time the South's offense (which controlled the ball 40 of the 48 minutes in the game) was effectively stopped was with six seconds in the game when fans suddenly poured out on the field and prevented the final conversion from being attempted.

However, the plight of the North was best described by one of its supporters after the game. "You know," he said with a smile, "it's too bad our boys practiced so hard for this game, because they didn't get a chance to use their plays."

Scots Post Legion Wins Here

Upland turned two "must-win" situations into an American Legion doubleheader sweep of Redlands, coming from behind to take the first game 6-5 and then, as if to leave no doubt in the minds of the fans, blasted Redlands out of Memorial Park, 11-4.

Upland joins another West End team champion, Ontario, at the playoffs.

Play continues today in the double-loss elimination tournament.

Last time Upland won a district playoff to decide a post-season tournament berth came in 1964—with the "Highlanders" going on to win the World Series at Little Rock, Ark.

After losing a heartbreaker (8-7), to Redlands on Sunday afternoon, Upland seemingly tried to hand it to the play-off spot. Redlands sported a 5-1 lead after four innings of play, yielding three of the runs by way of miscues.

But Upland was not going to roll over and play dead. Bruce Miller crashed a solo home run in the fifth and Dave Hill's RBI double in the sixth kept the pecking action in order.

A single, a walk, an error, a sacrifice, another single and another walk and Upland had its final three runs in the seventh. Eric Frazier scored the eventual game-winning run on a wild pitch.

Ari Sams again starred in the weekly Chaffey College All-Comers track meet.

The speedster from San Gorgonio won the high school 100 with a time of 10.2 and the long jump with a distance of 22-5.

Sams' time in the 100 was bested, however, in the open 100 by Rex Harvey of Norton Air Force Base, at 9.9.

Chaffey College's Mickey Senior was second to Harvey in that race at 10.2.

Meanwhile, Dan Jones of Montclair was also a double winner, winning the pole vault with a 14-0 effort and the 120 high hurdles with a time of 16.0.

Jones' time in the 120 highs was lowered to 15.8 by Burt Mitchell of San Gorgonio in the high school event.

The meet's biggest winner, however, was young Mike Bertschinger of Chino.

Bertschinger won four events, taking the elementary boy's 100 and 200 plus the 440 and the long jump.

In the girls' event, Toni Bridges was a double winner, winning the 100 and the 200.

Fathers And Sons

Father: "It's not time to make a change, just relax, take it easy. You're still young that's your fault there's so much you have to know. Find a girl settle down. If you want you can marry, look at me, I am old but I'm happy."

"I was once like you are now, and I know that it's not easy to be calm when you've found something going on, but take your time, think a lot, why think of everything you've got, for you will still be here tomorrow but your dreams may not."

Son: "How can I try to explain, 'cause when I do he turns away again. It's always been the same, same old story: From the moment I could talk I was ordered to listen, now there's a way and I know that I have to go. Away, I know, I have to go."

Father: "It's not time to make a change, just sit down, take it slowly, you're still young that's your fault, there's so much you have to go through. Find a girl, settle down, if you want you can marry, look at me I am old but I'm happy."

Son: "Away, away, away, I know I have to make this decision alone."

Father: "It's not time to make a change, just sit down take it slowly, you're still young that's your fault, there's so much you have to go through."

Son: "All the times that I've cried keeping all the things I knew inside it's hard, but it's harder to ignore it. If they were right I'd agree but it's them they know not me now there's a way, and I know that I have to go away, I know I have to go."

Kissing Ok; Mono Caught Elsewhere

Mononucleosis is especially well known to young people of high school and college age because it is relatively common during that time of life. The disease is not really transmitted specifically by kissing any more than by any other types of close contact. The exact mode of contagion remains a mystery because it is almost impossible to trace the source of a given case. Usually the patient with mononucleosis has no memory of contact with a sick individual. The disease may be unrecognized in early childhood. Those who, for some reason, have never previously been exposed will be susceptible to catching it at the time they reach high school or college age. Then, while in high school, college, or the armed forces, they come into contact with the disease and become ill. Prompt reporting of symptoms by this age group, together with easily available laboratory facilities in college and the armed forces, makes diagnosis more frequent and leads to the erroneous conclusion that the disease is almost confined to youth.

The symptoms of mononucleosis are more a nuisance than a threat. They can, however, impose limitations on normal activity sufficient to interfere with courses of study or other important endeavors. The illness usually begins with sore throat or headache more severe than those experienced in more common illnesses. When both of these symptoms occur at the same time, the individual may be made thoroughly miserable. Fever, if there is one, is most often mild. The acute symptoms may last for only two or three days, but sometimes persist for a week or more. When it follows its more normal course, infectious mononucleosis is simple for the physician to diagnose. Physical examination reveals enlargement of lymph nodes and sometimes a swelling of the spleen which may be very marked. The greatest danger associated with this disease occurs in the rare cases in which the swollen spleen is ruptured, resulting in internal bleeding. For this reason, physical exertion is best avoided during the acute stage and until this complication is ruled out by the physician. The liver, also, may become inflamed but this does not usually produce any serious difficulty nor does it cause permanent liver damage.

The diagnosis of this disease is made definite by a special blood test which is rarely positive in any other condition. Also, the microscopic appearance of the blood may change in a characteristic way.

Infectious mononucleosis usually requires no special treatment. Most cases subside quickly leaving no complaints except the fatigue normal after an illness. However, it is important for the correct diagnosis to be made promptly, as this differentiates the disease from other conditions in which specific treatment may be important. Usually the physician prescribes medication necessary to alleviate troublesome symptoms. Then the management hinges primarily on sufficient rest. However, it is wise to avoid crowds in order to limit exposure to other diseases during the period in which general resistance is reduced by the presence of mononucleosis. Restriction of activity is usually dictated only by the way the patient feels — most often for a period of only two or three weeks.

Continued quality medical treatment for Californians injured at work will be assured under the State's new medical fee schedule beginning October 1.

in three years can help assure that Californians injured on the job will continue to have immediate and quality medical treatment," Bell said.

A 50-cent increase in basic unit charges for industrially injured patients has been announced by Roy J. Bell, administrative director of the division of industrial accidents, State Department of Industrial

The last previous increase in these minimum charges was authorized on October 1, 1969, Bell said.

Bell said. Bell explained that under the Division's official schedule of minimum medical fees, the increase means that charges would be based on a charge or payment would, as to either the charging physician or payor, constitute a violation of Federal Price Commission regulations."

Anesthesiologists were allowing them to compute time for anesthesia in basic units of 12 minutes, rather than 15 minutes as now allowed.

EVERY DOLLAR YOU SAVE IS A BOOST TO THE ECONOMY.

Some people would have you believe that saving money is a disservice to the economy of this country. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Your money is loaned out to build new homes and churches and shopping centers, and low-cost multiple dwellings.

dwellings. And that means jobs. Jobs for carpenters, bricklayers, plumbers, road-builders, painters and a host of other occupations. Jobs for the people who cut the timber, make the bricks, manufacture the plumbing materials and paint.

The list is endless. It goes on and on. Your savings working to build the economy while they are building for your future.

ing for your future. It has been estimated that every dollar provided by a Savings and Loan creates four dollars of new economic activity. As a result, the $38 billion we loaned in mortgages last year generated $152 billion in the economy.

Edison Spending To Make Plants Acceptable

Spending to make industrial plants environmentally more acceptable has become a major item of expense for businessmen, stockholders-- and consumers. How much? Southern California Edison Company is a good example. This fourth-largest investor-owned electric utility in the United States has budgeted more than $60 million this year for environmental purposes, according to Jack K. Horton, chairman and chief executive officer. The company spent some $53 million last year on programs to protect the environment and to make its facilities more pleasing to the eye, and it expects to spend similar large sums in each of the next several years, he said.

Edison's environmental expenditures this year will represent about $8.20 for each of the more than 7 million electricity users in the company's 50,000-square-mile service territory. Of course, each customer's share of environmental costs will depend on the amount of electricity he uses.

The public demand for environmental improvement is one of the reasons that Chairman Horton declared recently that "even with the best governmental regulations, the highest attitudes, we're looking at a continuing increase in rates for several more years."

Electric utilities in the U.S. expect to invest $1 billion on air and water pollution control in 1972--up from the $565 million they spend in 1971, according to the highly respected trade publication, Electrical World. As a group, electric utilities plant the largest spending on air and water pollution control of any industry in 1972, the magazine observed.

Some individual environmentally oriented costs facing industry are huge. In the Four Corners area of New Mexico, a group of electric companies, including Edison, have already spent millions of dollars for pollution controls on a jointly-owned generating facility.

Now, new restrictive requirements in New Mexico have imposed even more stringent limitations. The new rules require modification of existing air pollution control equipment by Jan. 1, 1975. The controls do not now exist so their cost is not known -- but engineers believe Edison's share might be in excess of $30 million.

Flue gas recirculation fans for control of oxides of nitrogen are being installed in two of Edison's large generating stations this year at a total cost of $3 million, according to a company official.

What the eye perceives is a matter of great public and corporate concern now, too. But, beauty has an ugly price tag.

For instance, Edison has earmarked much of its 1972 environmental budget for esthetic purposes. For the most part, the money will go toward landscaping substations, substituting decorative type transmission towers for old style structures, and for undergoing distribution lines.

Edison has dozens of substations located throughout its service territory and, where environmental conditions justify, decorative walls, shrubbery, flowers, foliage and a variety of trees are helping to turn the somewhat stark facilities into eyepleasing areas.

The cost, Edison valuation engineers say, runs about $30,000 per substation, but some of the units with special problems have required ex-

The logo for Bonita Publishing Co. is a graphic design. At the top, there are three large, black, circular shapes with white outlines, resembling stylized eyes or pupils. Below these, the company name 'BONITA' is written in a large, bold, black, sans-serif font. Underneath 'BONITA', the words 'PUBLISHING CO.' are written in a slightly smaller, bold, black, sans-serif font. To the right of the text, there is a large, black, hand-drawn style signature that reads 'BONITA PUBLISHING CO.'. Below the logo, the address '4674 BROOKS STREET' and 'MONTCLAIR, CALIF. 91763' is printed in a smaller, black, sans-serif font.

'Free' Parkland Next Door To West End

West of the county line people have been making a lot of noise lately about the new Frank G. Bonelli County Regional Park.

The formerly Puddingstone Park, renamed after Frank G. Bonelli, a Los Angeles County Supervisor who died earlier this year, has received a facelift which might be noted by West End residents, who don't pay taxes to support it.

The new swimming complex at the Los Angeles County facility opened July 17 and has been jammed with people trying to beat the heat.

The $2.6 million complex, which covers 30 of the park's 2,000 acres, is a unique mixture of modern facilities and natural environment.

A massive pool, that doesn't look like one, has been constructed. It covers one acre and holds 1.6 million gallons of water. Its depth ranges from 12 feet to nothing as the huge plunge, which has a sand bottom instead of traditional plaster, slopes like a beach.

Around the water is a one acre sandy beach on one side and three diving boards and two high slides on the other side. A two story pavilion flanks the beach, including a food concession which can serve 1,000 people at one time.

The top floor can handle special functions for up to 1,100 persons. The lower level includes offices, dressing rooms and lockers.

The plunge is filtered and heated to a constant temperature of 85 degrees.

Around the swimming area is 28 additional acres of developed park. This includes hiking trails and family picnic grounds. One picnic area is sheltered and can handle groups of 200 persons.

Another picnic area is in an isolated grove of old oak trees which is only accessible by wading through a small stream.

The new park section is open daily from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. When school starts it will close at 5 p.m. The admission is 50 cents per person.

The development is the second phase of a $19.86 million improvement of the park. The first phase brought improvements to the north shore of Puddingstone Reservoir.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors recently cut the scope of the Bonelli Park project from $28.25 million. The project had grown from an original anticipated outlay for about $12 million.

The supervisors decided to turn over many of the planned installations to private concessionaires. Currently, the remainder of the project is in limbo as supervisors have delayed action on the third phase.

That phase would bring more than $6 million in roads and utility installations to provide for later development of the rest of the park. Most of the 2,000 acres is still undeveloped brush land.

Eventually, the facility will have an equestrian center and a network of riding trails, a family campground, more picnic areas, boat launches, hiking trails and wilderness area.

Completion was originally scheduled for 1976, but that date is in doubt because of the current review by the supervisors.

Food Is Fuel

eating are changed for the better.

Fruits and vegetables, eaten in recommended amounts by only 15 per cent of homemakers before training, increased to 45 percent. The bread and cereals group went from 40 to 60 percent, while milk increased from 45 to 60 percent and meat from 80 to 90 percent.

It's easy to see that people consider meat the basis for their meals. The task is getting them to spend their money wisely for meat and still afford other food products.

It is extremely valuable in this educational effort to have product area advertising like the California Milk Advisory Board's campaign. Such advertising encourages people to eat and drink nutritional foods, vividly tells why the body needs certain nutrients, and reinforces the value of eating something from the four basic food groups every day.

I'M PAYING MY WAY THROUGH COLLEGE ...AND I'M ONLY 13

That's pretty good, now that I think about it. Here I am, an independent businessman, buying newspapers from BONITA PUBLISHING CO., and selling them to the customers on my route. And I'm putting the money in the bank to help pay for college. Boy, that's really planning ahead.
